AROUND the TOWNSHIP

Total membership in the Niles Chamber of Commerce for 1938 several weeks ago was reported at 45½ and on last Monday the figure stood at 49½.

What's worrying us is whether the half is the bitter half or the better half. Or, if, on some occasion the half member walks into the meeting will it be the horizontal or the perpendicular half.

Looks as if King Solomon had an understudy on the membership committee of the chamber this year. Still, that group has done such a good job of boosting the roll from 29 to almost double that we really should withhold any criticism.

The Register would like to be put in touch with some one who has a cow with a gluttonous appetite for food of the pasture variety. We have a hunch that if bossy was staked out on the north and east side of our building she could do a lot of good in helping us to get rid of this spring's wild oats crop. Pretty soon we are going to have to get in there with a scythe and a lot of cow food will go to waste.

Today and Tomorrow will mark the formal opening events for four new business houses in Washington Township—three in Newark and one in Niles.

At Newark, Paul Gygax is celebrating the opening of his new Stop & Shop general merchandise store in a building recently erected for his occupancy. In the same structure is housed the Newark Drug Store. Only a couple of blocks away, also on Thornton Avenue, James J. Collins is occupying his newly completed Associated Super Service Station, which fairly radiates the final word in equipment for business of this kind.

In Niles, Frank Duarte and Joe Avilla are ready with their grand opening of the Niles Market in the corner location of the Ellsworth Building, recently vacated by Mrs. A. B. Moora, who now operates the new Rite Price Market in the corner location of the I. O. O. F. Building.

The Township marches on.

Whether through a "tooth magic show" or some other effective means parent-teacher associations in conjunction with the county health nurse have a splendid opportunity to render service to grammar schools of the township in bringing into operation dental clinics.

Such a clinic soon will open at the Newark School. Who will be next?

Red Cross Opens Another First Aid Highway Station

NEWARK—Dedication of Washington Township's second highway first aid station took place in Newark yesterday afternoon at the new service station opened this week by James Collins. The ceremonies were under the auspices of the Oakland Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Among those who participated were J. W. Garthwaite, chairman of the Oakland chapter; Dr. Alfred Bernstein, first aid instructor; Mrs. Lulu R. Webster, executive secretary and Miss Bertha Stutt of the Oakland chapter; Mrs. C. N. Myrick, chairman of the Washington Township branch, and others.

Equipment, including stretcher, blankets, first aid kit and materials, were bought by the Washington Township branch as a part of its peace time Red Cross program. Another station recently was opened at Warm Springs and plans are underway to establish one at Alvarado.

These stations serve a double purpose, states Garthwaite. They make first aid available that may possibly be the means of saving life as well as to eliminate complications from injuries received in highway accidents and also serve as a warning to motorists at dangerous intersections.

DIES AFTER BEING STRUCK DOWN BY AUTO NEAR LOWRIE RANCH

CENTERVILLE — Mike Houlihan, oldtimer of the township, was fatally injured when struck by a car while crossing the highway near the Lowrie ranch about midnight Saturday. He passed away at an Oakland hospital.

The car alleged to have hit Houlihan was driven by Iver Olsen of 26059 Eden ave., Hayward. The body was taken to Pratt's Mortuary.

The deceased, a native of this section, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Isabel Cahill of Niles and Mrs. James Martin of San Francisco and a brother in the South. He had been employed on the Lowrie ranch for the past 20 years.

Shower And Bridge Tea Honors Mission San Jose Bride To Be

NILES—At one of the loveliest social affairs this season in the township, Miss Florence Aust of Mission San Jose, was the guest of honor at a shower and bridge tea given by Miss Carol Overacker Sunday afternoon at her home on the Mission Road. Miss Aust's marriage to Walter Kane Scott, Seattle attorney, is to take place at the Mission in June.

The Overacker home, which recently has been extensively remodeled, was unusually lovely with arrangements of white flowers. Assisting the hostess in receiving were her mother, Mr. C. B. Overacker; Mrs. Marie Aust, mother of the honoree; and Mrs. Ben Tyson. The guest list included 24 friends from the township and the Bay section.

Two complete sets of crystal were received by the bride-to-be. After the opening of gifts and a bridge game, tea was served. Prize for high score in the bridge game went to Mrs. Joseph Shinn, Jr. and second to Mrs. Alwin Searles.

Bay section guests included Mrs. Ford Byington of Berkeley, Mrs. Robert Boyer of Oakland and Mrs. Jack Rennish of Alameda. Others present were Mesdames Aust, Overacker, Tyson, Allen Norris, James Logan, Alwin Searles, Joseph Shinn, Jr., Gladys Williamson, Frances Mackey, Franklin Brown, and Misses Antoinette Botelho, Maxine DeCoty, Josephine Herbert, Agnes Driscoll, Estelle Martenstein, Florence Aust and Carol Overacker.

Thousands Expected to Throng Bulb Show With Fair Weather Prevailing Over Week End

NILES—Fair weather that promises to last over the week end prophesies hundreds of visitors to the seventh annual bulb show at the California Nursery Company tomorrow and Sunday. Thousands of visitors already have seen the display of more than 100,000 bulbs which spread carpets of color in the gardens.

Strolling singers will be present to entertain those who stop at the Old Adobe for tea. Sandwiches are on sale by the Children's Hospital and the Country Club of Washington Township.

On Wednesday more than 250 persons had lunch in the Adobe gardens, the largest group representing the Farm Home Department of Alameda County. More than a score of garden clubs from as far south as Saratoga and as far east as Sacramento have already met at the nursery and numerous others are scheduled for the coming week.

Although the show will officially close a week from Sunday, there will still be plenty of tulips and flowering shrubs to delight the eye of flower lovers for weeks to come.

Many local hostesses are using the show as an incentive for entertaining out-of-town guests and Niles as a whole is in the mood of hospitality for the bulb show. In addition to the personal pleasure of visiting the display, residents of the township are taking this opportunity of expressing to Mr. and Mrs. George C. Roeding, Jr., appreciation of the many services which the nursery extends to the community the year around.

The past few weeks have also furnished opportunity for visitors to place orders for bulbs and flowering trees, the blossoms making it possible to choose color and variety for future plantings.

Operetta Is Given Before Big Crowd At High School

CENTERVILLE—A full house witnessed the annual operetta at the Washington Union High School last night. "The Gypsy Rover", a musical comedy in three acts, was chosen for this year's production with Paul Manley playing the title role and opposite him in the romantic lead was Lorraine Peterson. Plenty of laughs were furnished by Tom McWhirter as Lord Craven, an English fop; and Bob Reedy as Marto and Bill Silva as Sinfo.

Other leads were taken by Jean Rogers, Thelma Van Ike, George Mathiesen, Genevieve Andrade, Joseph Amaral, James Silva, Leroy Naia and John Ziegler. The choruses in colorful gypsy costumes added much to the enjoyment of the affair.

The first scene was in a gypsy camp near London and the second and third acts took place in the home of Sir George, English country gentleman.

Miss Antoinette Botelho directed the production and music between acts was given by the high school orchestra under the direction of Dwight Thornburg.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP GROUP PLANS VISIT TO OAKLAND AND HAYWARD

NILES—Last Sunday Doremus Scudder, vice president, presided at the meeting of the Pilgrim Fellowship of the Niles Congregational Church. The minutes were read and several announcements made.

Next week the group will go to Oakland to hear "The Last Seven Words" given by the choir of the First Congregational Church. The following Sunday they have been invited to Hayward for their first vesper service. It was decided to hold choir practice on both Tuesday and Friday next week instead of Thursday.

The meeting was turned over to Marjorie Pementel, who led the discussion. The topic was "Good Will Put to the Test." This proved to be very interesting and every one took part. After singing taps the meeting closed.

Saturday evening the members of the group were guests at a supper party held at the church. Mrs. Sladek was hostess.

C. of C. Directors Will Hold Monthly Night Session; Weekly Membership Meetings Continue

NILES—Under the new policy adopted by unanimous vote at Monday's Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting, next Monday night the directors of the Chamber of Commerce will meet in executive session to handle the volume of business which has been piling up at the weekly luncheon meetings.

One of the items on the agenda for that meeting will be discussion of a definite program and financial budget to support the work outlined.

Any interested townspeople having any suggestions to present are invited to be present, or if they prefer, they may hand their suggestions to Secretary Petsche any time prior to the meeting.

The weekly luncheons are being continued as means of meeting and developing community problems in round table discussion and for general sociability among the members.

A letter was read last Monday from the County Surveyor in reply to one from Secretary Petsche asking for improvement of the highway near the Sullivan Underpass. The county replied that the road under consideration was on state property and that the request for improvement had been referred to the State Highway Deparment.

Fifty members have been signed up by the membership committee.

EASTER MEDITATIONS
(Of a Work-A-Day Man)

For most of us, this is a mad-cap world in which we start out bravely trying to learn to walk and end up trying to find time to sit down.

In childhood, we yearn for adulthood. And having reached our majority, we yearn for so much that we gallop out madly to achieve it and arrive at middle-age still having failed to find much time to ponder why we are, or the ineffable mystery of living.

In hours of uncertainty and idleness, we hunt frantically for work. At the pinnacle of success, we long for leisure and the simple enjoyments we have missed. We build cabins in the weeds to shut out the stars and pull the shade of our living room to keep out the sun. We buy books of other men's dreams and landscapes others have painted. We listen to nationwide broadcasts, but seldom thrill to the stillness of the night. We fly through the heavens, but seldom contemplate them.

We are a work-a-day people, so busy with our cares and ambitions that we miss a great deal of the joy of worthwhile living. Yet now and then we pause—at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter—and think a bit of why we are here, and whence we came, and whither we are drifting. And here in California, we have a happy custom at Easter; we have sunrise services. As the sun swings over the horizon, we meditate, perhaps, that because of the sun the world has light. We speak the words in unison, "I am the Resurrection . . " And we know then, for a brief, revealing flash, whence came the sun, and the stars, and the hills—and the life and the beauty that are ours!

BATTER UP

Crack. Out from the plate goes a line drive into center field. With the President on hand to give his official sanction and thousands of fans to roar, "It's a hit", this week sees the start of 1938's baseball season.

From now until the last "Out" is called in October, it's a case of "Slide, Kelly, Slide", "Wow What a homer", and "Kill the Umpire". With hot-dogs and soft drinks as the bill-of-fare, America sits down to enjoy the thrills of the king of summer sports.

And if you've time for a serious thought—along about the seventh inning stretch—remember that when nine million fans can pay $15 million to see the two major leagues play—things can't be too bad with the old U. S.

PROGRESS PAYMENT ON 1937 CROP SENT TO ALMOND GROWERS

Checks were mailed April 1 by the California Almond Growers Exchange to almond producers aggregating $300,000. This amount represents progress payment on the 1937 crop, together with retirement of members' past contributions to Exchange reserves, Series No. 7.

Manager D. R. Bailey states the 1937 almond crop proved to be the largest in the state's history, being approximately 2½ times that of the preceding year, and that irrespective of continually declining business conditions throughout the almond sales season, prices have been fairly well maintained, with exchange sales to date approximately double those of last year at a like period.

Bailey further states that crop prospects for the coming season are at present indefinite as considerable damage has been done to orchards by the past severe winter and the hazard of frost damage will continue to exist until after the middle of April.

Nickles and Dimes, Nickles and Dimes--You Can't Cash Check Won For Writing Rhyme

"I CASH MY CHECK"
By Kate Sladek

For a long time I had my doubts. But now I know that advertising contests are open and aboveboard. They are run on honest principles and the prizes go to the most deserving, for I won one.

My prize was a hundred dollars and it was easy. I just wrote a little rhyme and they sent me a check. Cashing it. That was where the hard part came in. Along with the check came a polite little note asking me to take it to a certain downtown bank, where it would be honored. Never having won a contest before I thought that sounded simple.

I started out with the check, two dollars and a dime. But just as I was going out of the door I was stopped by our colored laundress, who begged for an advance in pay. Again she was on the point of being turned out by a hardhearted landlord. I gave her the two dollars and kept the dime for a parking fee. I would soon be rich. What did it matter? I parked my car, paying my dime beforehand. It was that kind of parking lot. Then I entered the big imposing-looking bank. I showed my letter to several courteous gentlemen of advancing years. The first looked about fifteen and the fifth about sixty. He was the cashier and was the proper person to see, but he explained that I had to be identified. Of course. I had brought along for this very purpose my visiting card, my driver's license and my husband's check book. He examined them and seemed to think them very nice but utterly useless. I had to appear before a notary with a witness, "a respected citizen, acceptable to the bank." He was pery kind. "Just call in one of your friends." Now, how did I know which of my friends would be acceptable to the bank." He was very spected citizen" certainly had a masculine ring. He meant a man and not a member of my bridge club. My husband's plant was several miles out of the city, too far for one of his business associates to arrive before the bank closed. I timidly suggested the names of three acquaintances whose offices were near by. "Fine! Fine! They will do nicely. Just use this phone to call one." He indicated a pay phone and looked expectant. I gulped. No use even fumbling in my pocketbook. I knew what was there. Nothing. "I-er-Thank you. I have to go to a drug store, anyway. I'll just phone from there."

I hurried out, and as soon as I was on the sidewalk I had an inspiration. It was the policeman in the middle of the street, directing traffic. I had heard somewhere that if you lost your pocketbook a policeman is duty bound to give you car fare. This one had a kind face and I approached him. "Please, can you lend me a dime for just ten minutes? I mean fifteen," I added. I was beginning to lose faith in the simplicity of this thing.

"Did you lose your pocket book?" he asked, looking at it.

"Yes," I said, holding it up in full view.

He grinned and gave me a dime which I took to the nearest drug store, and had changed to two nickles. I phoned one of the acceptables. Out, but the secretary was in and so I did not get my nickle back. I phoned another. Result the same. Well, I couldn't go back to that policeman. I went out on the sidewalk and my second inspiration came. On the corner was a jewelry store. I went in and handed the man my wrist watch. He glanced at it and asked, "What's wrong with it?" I said, "Nothing, but now that you haye it will you lend me a dime on it?"

"Madame, do you think this is a pawn shop?"

"No sir, but I need two nickles very badly and I wanted you to have some security." He did not have the sense of humor of the traffic officer, probably because he was of a race more serious-minded. He looked at me in a startled way, but handed me the two nickles.

I went to another drug store, thought up another respected citizen and tried again. The answer was "He's out of town."

I had another name on my mental list and another nickle. Surely this wouldn't fail. An alert young voice answered, a voice with a lot of personality, a voice that I hated. "He's over at the court house on a case but we're expecting him back at five o'clock. Any message?" "Yes. Tell him that at five o'clock I'll be beyond help from him."

Now what? Certainly my watch was worth another nickle, but I hadn't liked the look in that jeweler's eye, a look that said "Is she a crook or just a mental case?" No, I wouldn't go back there for anything, except my watch.

It was time for a third inspiration and it came. I had heard of people who had found returned nickles, left in pay telephones. There were four phones in this drug store. I boldly went up and felt in each, one after the other, and in the fourth,—Yes, I know. It's hard to believe, but there it was. Now that I had it, though, what good did it do me? I couldn't think of anyone else in that part of town whom I knew well enough to call. There was a famous doctor whose offices were nearby. I knew he would be acceptable to the bank, but would I be acceptable to him? We had met at a party and he wouldn't remember me without a lengthy explanation, but I was desperate. I cupped that nickle in my hands and talked to it. I have heard this brought results in certain games of chance. It brought results this time. Soon the great man was on the phone, had listened to the lengthy explanation and had graciously consented to identify me.

It was as I thought. His name was magic. I know that all of the vice presidents must have come scurrying out of their cubbyholes. We were soon surrounded by bowers and scrapers, one of whom must have been the notary, for I soon found myself in front of a grated window.

By this time I was so embarrassed and bewildered that when a deferential voice asked, "How would you like it?"I merely swallowed. I wanted to answer, "Very much," but I couldn't even form the words.

He tried again, smiling encouragement. "What denomination do you wish—" This time I got his meaning, in spite of that religious term. "If you please." I said, "I would like two dimes."

Decoto Merchants Win Handily From Newark On Sunday

By Eugene Pashote

The Newark Merchants were defeated by the Decoto Merchants on last Sunday by a score of 9 to 4.

Newark scored three runs in the fourth inning on five walks, and one error.

Star hitters were Springer, pitcher, getting a single; J. Silva and J. Dutra each one hit; Tony Rivers, two base hit.

Springer allowed 5 hits in 3 innings while Amaral allowed 6 hits in 6 innings for Newark.

Santiago, for Decoto allowed two hits in 4 innings but was sent to the bench because of walking 5 men. A. Dutra, or better known as "Duke", finished the game allowing 2 hits and walking one batter.

Interviewing ball players will be cancelled until next week, so we can tell you this week, what kind of a manager Newark has for 1938. He is Tony "Shiser" Martin of Newark and lives on Ash Street. He was assistant manager in 1937, but took over the duties of manager when Joseph E. Pashote resigned last August.

Martin's job used to be umpiring, but he oould catch fish, better than he could umpire. So this year we are looking for him to manage the Newark team as well as he brought home fish last year.
